About the Exhibition

International Industrial Week (IIW) Indonesia 2026 is one of Southeast Asia's leading B2B industrial trade exhibitions, scheduled to take place from 3 to 6 June 2026 at Jakarta International Expo, Kemayoran. The event has rapidly grown into a strategic hub for industrial innovation, technology exchange, and market development, attracting major industry players, manufacturers, suppliers, and professional buyers from across the globe.

IIW Indonesia brings together a comprehensive range of industrial machinery, equipment, and technologies under one roof, with a wide spectrum of product categories including machine tools, logistics and material handling, packaging, automation, energy solutions, food processing technologies, and more. The exhibition is designed to serve as a one-stop industrial marketplace where exhibitors can showcase cutting-edge solutions and buyers can explore the latest industry advancements and business opportunities.

The 2026 edition is expected to feature around 1,800 exhibitors and more than 50,000 professional visitors, reflecting the event's continued growth and significance in the regional industrial calendar. As a premier industrial exhibition in Indonesia, IIW plays an important role in connecting global industrial ecosystems with one of Southeast Asia's fastest-growing markets, supporting industry development, technology transfer, and international trade partnerships.
