Opportunity for Engineering Exports to Bangladesh

Bangladesh has gained momentum in the recent years and has become the second largest economy of South Asia. As the neighbouring country of India with a common border of length 4096 kms. This makes Bangladesh an important destination for Indian engineering exports. Some of the major industries in Bangladesh are that of textile, agriculture and food processing. There is also a flourishing light engineering industry in Bangladesh. Presence of all these sectors would need continuous supply of machineries and other technological components – these create significant opportunity for the Indian exporters. Apart from the above Bangladesh is developing its infrastructure which would also require machineries and electrical components. There is significant scope in automobile, two and three wheelers, auto components and medical devices sector too. Since INDEE which is EEPC India's flagship overseas event caters to arrange of engineering products it would be helpful for Indian engineering exporters across sectors to expand their presence in Bangladeshi market
