Economic scenario of United Kingdom

As of 2024, the United Kingdom remains a significant player in the global economy. It is the sixth-largest national economy in the world by nominal GDP and the ninth-largest by purchasing power parity (PPP). The UK constitutes 3.1% of the world's nominal GDP and 2.3% of the world's GDP by PPP. The economic outlook for 2024 shows some positive developments. The IMF has raised its forecast for the UK's GDP growth to 1.1% for 2024, up from an earlier projection of 0.7%. This improvement is attributed to lower inflation and anticipated cuts in the Bank of England's interest rates. Inflation has fallen to its lowest rate in over three years, which is expected to support household finances and spending. Gradual fiscal consolidation is necessary to support the return of inflation to target levels and rebuild fiscal space after substantial support during the pandemic and energy crisis. Tax reforms are also needed to strengthen revenues to meet growing spending needs due to ageing and the green transition.

Boosting labour supply and enhancing business investment are critical to lifting productivity. Supply-side reforms are needed to provide businesses with certainty regarding taxation and land use planning. Despite the challenges, the UK is expected to be the fourth best-performing G7 economy relative to pre-pandemic levels, outperforming France, Japan, and Germany.
